Bugoye is a community just to the north of the town of Kasese in the Rwenzori Mountains of western Uganda. We have been working with the farmers in this area for over 4 years. The local farmers are smallholders growing coffee as their main cash crop, usually to raise funds to pay school fees for their children.

The farmers throughout this area, who live and farm from 1300 up to 1900 masl, bring their freshly picked red-ripe cherries to the washing station for processing. They are paid a top price at the time of delivery. The cherries are then pulped, washed and laid out to dry, turned regularly until the moisture content is correct. The coffee is stored, and then hulled before the long journey by truck down to Mombasa on the Kenyan coast, and by ship to the UK.
